Best to Wind Watch in Morning. Winding is the food of a watch. It is its life-blood, and upon it every movement of the works depends. The time-keeping value of a watch depends less upon its cost than upon the care that is taken of it by its owner. If wound in the morning instead of at night it will keep much better time.

CHICAGO DEFENSE PARADE TO START AN EVENTFUL WEEK

One Hundred and Fifty Thousand People Expected in Chicago for Various Conventions After Parade.

Chicago, June 1.—Chicago's great parade in the interest of preparedness, which will take place on Saturday, June 3, will usher in seven days that it is estimated, will make Chicago the center of the greatest crowd of visitors it has ever taken care of and which will take place on the city's streets as has not been done since the World's Columbian Exposition in 1893.

After the preparedness parade, in which 150,000 persons are expected to take part, will come various conventions. On Monday, June 5, the national convention of women suffragists will meet for a three-day session at the Blackstone theatre, and two days later the Progressive National convention will meet in the Auditorium and the Republican national convention at the Coliseum.

How to house all the visitors expected is a problem which has been puzzling Mayor Thompson's entertainment committee of 200 citizens. The committee has been busy supervising the situation and has made lists of hotels and private boarding houses where the city's visitors may be accommodated. Most of the down town hotels already have disposed of their quarters, and the smaller and outlying hotels are being called also.

Ship Lodging Houses. One large lake excursion steamer will become a temporary lodging house and it is expected that many Pullman cars will be drawn into service while the crowds in the city. The city and citizens have offered the use of their automobiles for entertainment of Chicago's guests and many private homes will take care of the city's visitors.

Mayor Thompson, personally in charge of the general entertainment plan, will assist his committee to include dances, theatre parties, automobile races, motorboat races, including an exhibition of the prowess of James A. Fugate's famous hydroplane, Disturber XV, said to be the swiftest motorboat in the world, and daily sailing races between fast yachts.

There will also be drills by police and some of the crack squads of Chicago, and rough riding and roping exhibitions by cowboys from the Chicago Union Stockyards, all these exhibitions taking place at Grant park.

Daily excursions will be given and one interesting feature of them will be visits to and detailed inspections of the new Chicago municipal pier, now almost completed at a cost of $5,000,000, and combining in a unique way facilities for passenger and freight traffic and equipment for amusements, such as dancing and concerts, or for the more serious purposes of convention, lecture and conferences.

Sporting Events. For the sportsmen, golf tournaments have been arranged to take place on the links of the various country clubs in connection with the recreation of the links there will be given, after the games, very receptions, luncheons and dances, which will last through the night.

Discussions. Far-reaching influx of visitors, Mayor Thompson, who has taken a lively interest in the affairs that will mark the stay of the summerers within Chicago's gates, said: "When I appeared before the public national committee in Washington last winter I promised that if the Republican convention were awarded to Chicago we would entertain our visitors on a scale never before undertaken by an American city. Chicago is going to make good convention week and will keep every promise made."

W. W. Durham, chairman of the committee on organization of state societies, has appointed a sub-committee to supervise the entertainment of visiting delegates from every state in the union.

MAKING FAST TIME AT JANESVILLE TRACK

Speed Supt. Charles Putnam Has Track in Excellent Shape and Conditioning is Well

Fast time at the Janesville Park association track by trainers at the stable continues to be made. The tracks are in the best of condition and even at this time horsemen regard them the best of many courses of the country at this season.

Mr. Ormsbee, who was announced as trotting the mile in 2:17 several weeks ago, made another fast mile recently. The horse was driven by Mr. Ormsbee both times. He says that the horse was feeling good at the time and stepped the last mile in two minutes.

Mr. Ormsbee has a horse in his stables in excellent condition at this time. He holds this due solely to the fine tracks for use in the workouts. As a training place for trotters and pacers he regards the local courses as the best in the country. The buildings are the best and everything is handy and in addition Charles Putnam, speed superintendent of the big Janesville fair and of the Park association, always has the track in the best possible condition.

This week there are forty odd horses in training and reports are that all are doing fine. The good track is a surprise to horsemen who never before on any other training track were able to condition their horses at so early a date. The local weather conditions are better than those prevalent since the training season opened.

FIFTY-THREE LICENSES ISSUED FOR DOGS SO FAR

Today there was an increased demand for dog licenses at the office of F. J. Hammarlund, city clerk, and the total number issued at this morning totaled up to fifty-three. Today was the date which the revised ordinance requires that the licenses be taken out and affixed to the dog collar. The police desire that the tags be riveted to the collars in order that the tags will be plainly visible and be less likely to be lost or stolen. A reasonable time will be allowed for the dog owners to purchase the one and two dollar licenses before officers are sent out to enforce the ordinance through out prosecution.

PRE-HARVEST PREDICTION BIG FOR WINE IN GERMANY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, June 1.—The pre-harvest predictions of an unusually big yield of wine in Germany have been more than borne out by the results. The official report just issued gives a production of 737,905 hectoliters of must in 1915, the greatest production of any year since the introduction (in 1902) of the present wine law. In those thirteen years the production sank as low as 23,204 hectoliters in 1913, and the famous year of 1911 brought but 537,197 hectoliters of must.

The quality also was good. Of the white wines, 41 per cent were ranked as "very good," 52 per cent as "good" and seven per cent as "medium." Only 23,972 liters of the total consisted of red wines. Most of the white wines came from the Moselle, Saar and Ruwer districts, which contributed almost three-fourths of the total, "about 55,000 hectoliters came from the Rhine vineyards."

The prices obtained were slightly below those of certain other years, but the total still reached 44,390,000 marks, the greatest on record, exceeding even 1911. In 1914 the total was only 11,630,000 marks.

The wine market, however, continues good, absorbing all offerings readily.

CO-OPERATION.

There is nothing that succeeds like success. The world always applauds the successful person, be it man or woman, and has little of condolence to offer to the failure. What is true in this respect is true of any community and its civic matters. Co-operation is essential to bring forth the best results. You can not complain continually about the city government, always pick the flaws in its administration, of justice and management of affairs and expect the average citizen to have any respect left for his home town. Speak a good word now and then. Praise worthy efforts and condone the mistakes if we are to hope to succeed.

The insistent demand for labor at the present time in many communities that have large manufacturing plants enjoying an inflated prosperity due to "war orders" has perhaps taken some workers from the city and in consequence we hear blame laid at the doors of many organizations and corporations that such conditions exist. Even the city government comes in for its share of blame, innocent though it is, and the effect is far from gaining any desired results other than creating a feeling of unrest in the community as a whole.

It is true that Janesville factories have not taken war orders while others in various communities have. It is an inflated prosperity that the country is enjoying. Were it not for these orders factories all over this country would be idle and we would be in the midst of the deepest of financial depression. This country has passed financial crises before and if the present malcontents will look back they will find that while some of the big factories now seeking extra hands in their rush period closed down throwing thousands out of employment and swelling the soup line in the cities, the Janesville factories continued to run as usual and but little effect of a panic was felt here.

This is a conservative community. Too much so perhaps, but what is built is carefully constructed and is not erected on shifting sands that a financial depression would wipe out of existence. It is time for co-operation and not for criticism. This inflated prosperity will not last long enough to deplete the ranks of the working force of Janesville so that any industry will be materially crippled and those who have left will doubtless return within a short period to take up their work here again. Be a booster not a knocker.

JEFFRIS CLUBS.

All over the state reports come that Jeffris Republican clubs are being organized to help in the nomination of Malcom Jeffris of Janesville for the United States Senatorial office. It is going to be a hard up hill work but with the enthusiasm shown thus early in the campaign apparently it is going to be one that may be accomplished by hard work. There is no question what Jeffris stands for. He does not mince matters. He calls a spade a spade and a club a club. He talks the same to every class of voter and he does not pussyfoot about on secret missions and meeting his constituents behind closed doors. He was selected by the Republicans of the state at an open meeting at which one hundred and ten duly elected delegates were present. He received the majority of votes and at the conclusion of the business of the convention he made a rousing speech, the Americanism of which can not be questioned.

Mr. Jeffris will make a campaign that the republicans will be proud of. The preliminary work is the hardest, but once these obstacles are overcome he will tell the people of the state who he is, what he stands for and what he does not stand for in a manner that should be convincing. He is a campaigner, this same Jeffris, and he will demonstrate that despite the fact it is a dozen years since he made public speeches, he has lost none of his cunning.

One thing is certain, his campaign will not be financed by the taxpayers' money. He will not neglect his duties in congress to come back to Wisconsin to bathe his former friends and extol the virtues of his faithful followers. To quote yards upon yards of campaign figures and facts and other things that the martyr before "God's footstool" who are now overburdened by the reform administrations of the past.

Jeffris' campaign will be clean-cut and decisive and he will not tell one thing one night and another the second. He will stick to facts as they exist—not as they ought to exist—and his speeches will be listened to with avidity by the voters who seek their own best interests.

COUNTING THE BIRDS.

A census of birds is to be taken all over the country the last of May and first of June by Federal investigators. It is believed that by counting nest-places, a fairly accurate idea of bird population can be had. If such a census had been made ten or twenty years ago, it is probable that the 1916 figures would show a large decline.

The birds are the principal defenders of growing crops against pests. But public sentiment has been slow to secure their protection. If a bird serves no visible purpose in the state where he spends part of his life, he is ruthlessly slaughtered for pot pie, regardless of whether he is the salvation of the crops in some other state. The migratory bird law giving uniform protection is yet to be passed on as to constitutionality by the United States Supreme Court.

Bird life has many enemies. The ignorant immigrant, regarding this as a free country, joyously gets out with a shotgun and slaughters a dozen or two songsters for a luscious dinner. Decadent natives kill them for shipment to city hotels. The cats from cultured homes roam unrestrained through orchards and lawns, picking up the young who can't fly.

It seems inconsistent to spend millions in teaching the farmer how to raise crops and next to nothing on saving the birds that are the only sure protection of the crops after they are planted.

Thus protection of bird life is intimately related to cost of living. Food prices will be high as long as swarms of insects devastate the fields. This argument should appeal to those who see such questions merely in the light of dollars. But there are many for whom birds perform other services, and to whom country life without their cheery songs would seem like a body minus soul.

MILITIA PROBLEM.

According to information made public by the War Department, the President's call for the mobilization of the National Guard of Texas, Arizona and New Mexico has resulted in failure. So many members of the Guard have refused to serve that the War Department officials say it will require months to mobilize any considerable force of militia. Of the Second Regiment of Texas, alone, 118 men have refused to join the colors for service along the boundary. It is further disclosed that the Adjutant-Generals of these three States had ten days' notice of the President's purpose to call on the National Guard to assist in patrolling the Mexican border, but notwithstanding that fact they have made comparatively little progress and there is no prospect of these States turning out anywhere near the paper strength of their National Guard organizations, or even anywhere near as many as equipment has in the past been provided for by the Government. In the estimation of the War Department, this experience has shown the folly of relying on the National Guard as a part of the nation's first line of defense, just as was contended by Secretary Garrison, and rejected by the President.

The refusal of the Senate to confirm Mr. Rublee's appointment was not so much slap at the usefulness of the candidate for the office that President Wilson sought to name him for, but as the President for trying to inject partisan politics into national affairs. Mr. Rublee is a progressive not a republican and the senate demanded that a Republican be named while the president sought to engender further strife in the Republican ranks by ignoring Republicans and naming a National Progressive.

That new police patrol is a great thing for joy riding. While the crowds were swarming the downtown streets on Memorial Day, with insufficient police to handle the congested corners, the wagon with several officers was tearing away out into a country road, probably looking for some lonely drunk.

Preparedness appears to be on the mouth of every public speaker these days, still congress does not appear to hear the sound in their halls of deliberation and the "waiting watchful" policy of the administration calls for continued delay.

It is claimed that people by listening at the telephone have stolen information from J. P. Morgan & Co. These things will happen when the smart New York newspaper reporters fall down on their jobs and fail to print the news.

The men seem to feel it is perfectly proper for women to engage in all kinds of athletics, provided they wear enticing skirts so long that they can't possibly compete with the superior masculine sex.

If you are worried by all these diet and health articles you see by experts in the newspapers, all you have to do is to look a little further and find articles by other equally competent experts giving just opposite advice.

It is believed, if a hostile fleet appeared off New York City and proceeded to bombard the same, that some of our generous statesmen would be willing to appropriate as much as $17.93 for preparedness.

The public demands all steel passenger cars, and will generously permit the inventors to pay assessments on the new stock that would have to be issued to buy them.

The pictures you see in the women's columns are not Dutch girls that wear a dozen skirts and pose as antique curiosities for travelers, but merely the 1916 Girl of the period.

The noble Carranza troops will be ready to start in pursuit of Villa as soon as arrangements can be made for regular Sunday afternoon bull fights wherever they camp.

Ex-President Taft is now advancing toward a state of Preparedness by laying in ten dozen golf balls and a lot of newly sandpapered and varnished golf clubs.

Talking of politics, who do you think the Republicans will nominate next week in Chicago and can you guess if it is not Roosevelt, whether he will again bolt the ticket or not?

Go to Sunday School Day with great effort was observed by some churches during May. There is no trouble getting it observed just before Christmas.

Contrary to general impression, circus and minstrel show bands would attract just as much attention if they did play in tune.

Society for the past six weeks has conscientiously engaged in dissipation to make up for the self-denial of Lent.

The next big holiday is the Fourth. Janesville's celebration is going to be some celebration you can rest assured.

Dakota. It was a hot day, 99 above in its stocking feet. Suddenly a light gust of wind blew a newspaper into his hands, so Boshland decided to read it.

The first item that caught his eye was dated, Blowhard, Kan.—"A hot terror of a cyclone struck this town last night, wreaking havoc and indignation. Fourteen homes have disappeared so far and not been heard from, and the 2nd Vegetarian Church was lifted and set down in front of the 'Splooter's pool parlor.'"

Needless to say, Boshland Wheat took the first train back home. Wreckage met his eyes everywhere. "Ah, at least the house is still there," he muttered, and rushed in, only to find everything in confusion. Tables, chairs, pictures, rugs, babies' banks, were piled pell-mell in dreadful confusion. There was no sign of his wife.

"Bertha!" he cried in a frenzy. "Bertha!" he cried in a frenzy. "Oh, you are back!" cried her voice from upstairs. "I'm spring housecleaning. Don't fall over anything, isn't it lucky the cyclone never touched us?"

With a muttered oath, Boshland Wheat went out and got drunk.

GENERAL APPROVAL OF ARCHBISHOP'S STAND ON DRESS

HEAD OF MILWAUKEE DIOCESE OF CATHOLIC CHURCHES DISCUSSES WOMEN'S DRESS.

IS STARTLING EDIT

Gowns Worn in Public Declared to Be Immodest and Indecent.—Local Clergy Discuss Problem.

One of the most startling denunciations of women's gowns of the present mode was made by Archbishop Messmer of Milwaukee, Diocese of the Catholic Church in a recent letter to his clergy. In it the gowns of the women who seek to ape the modern fashion are called immodest and indecent. In fact, the archbishop even further and urges his priests to call attention to the conditions from their pulpits.

At the request of the Gazette every pastor of the various Janesville churches were asked for their opinion on the subject as far as they could be reached by telephone this morning, and the following interviews were had: The Rev. Father, who is almost unanimously in support of the views set forth by the archbishop, and some even go further. The archbishop's statement as to the matter is found in the following paragraph of his letter:

"The section of the letter to the Catholic clergy sent out recently by Archbishop Messmer, referring to the dress of girls and women today, and given out Wednesday by the Rev. Bernard Traudt, is as follows: 'Immodest and indecent in the matter of dressing of women and girls is the most distressing and alarming feature of modern society. It becomes the strict duty of the Catholic clergy to warn the faithful against this evil, which is a cause of so much sin and scandal. I earnestly request you, dear fathers, to prepare a strong sermon on the sin of scandal, and to treat in particular of the scandal by immodest female dress.'

"Such a sermon, preached at an early date (within two or three weeks) in the Catholic churches of our diocese will powerfully help to prevent among Catholic girls and women indecent exposure of naked arms, breasts and shoulders which has become particularly ostentatious during the warm summer season. Remind Catholic parents of their duty to restrain the natural vanity of their daughters, and to teach your people—the Catholic women—young and old—who dare to approach the holy table while indecently attired will be refused holy communion. Let them cover their arms and shoulders, at least in church, as it behooves every Christian woman."

"The remainder of the letter was private to the priests. The attention of Janesville ministers whose attention was called to the edict of the archbishop, made various comments upon it. Rev. F. H. Brigham, Cargill Memorial M. E. church, said: 'My attention has been called to the statement of Archbishop Messmer relative to what he describes as immodest and indecent in the manner of dress by girls and women. His words are not too strong and the pity of it is that so many modest and decent girls are so much slaves to the fashion. I am convinced that what is needed is a campaign of education, that both mothers and daughters may know the moral danger which such conduct poses to the developing youth of both sexes. The archbishop might have added a warning against a custom of rather lightly regarded and apparently practiced quite brazenly in this city, that of 'spooning.' Here is the gateway to every moral ruin since time began, and every one not altogether unsophisticated knows it. If either mother or daughter know that admiration is the sort of admiration that is always shallow and short lived. That it is shallow and short lived, that it leads to the divorce court rather than the happy home, they would spend a larger part of their time cultivating admirable qualities of mind and heart, rather than beautiful figures."

Rev. E. A. F. Treu, St. Paul's German Lutheran church, said: 'The immodest dress is, of course, not a modern invention. Even St. Paul, in his time felt called upon to admonish women to adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety. This admonition is certainly very timely today. We need more shamefacedness and sobriety in the sex in regard to dress, and it becomes the church's duty all the more to preach the gospel of the Christ crucified. For all those who have true faith in Christ, redemption will be governed by Christian principles in regard to morals, and Christian women are particularly well equipped to draw the proper lines between the morals of dress. Those who would not be governed by Christian principles in regard to dress should be governed by civil laws. For those who will not abide by the laws of the best treatment would be to have them treated as lockup by an officer and then adequately punished lest they become a menace to public morals and decency.'

Rev. Charles E. Ewing, First Congregational church, said: 'What is meant by indecent dress? I have seen nothing in the recent styles, here in Janesville, that answers that description. Styles change, and every new fashion is a departure and beautiful costume will seem immodest to some people. Having lived in both Orient and Occident, I find modesty in the woman, not in the dress that she wears.'

Reverend John McKinney, Christ Episcopal church, said: 'The tendency of the present fashion in dress among women and young girls is to be deplored. If criticism have been reformed and, modesty, the charm of woman, would have taken its proper place. An appeal, however, must be taken to the hearts of the foundations must be laid, to take the first step to shield the woman from the reproaches of the man in the street.'

Reverend James A. Robinson, United Methodist church, said: 'Immodesty in feminine attire cannot be too severely condemned. It is an insult to both sexes. It brings the blush of shame to the cheek to pure womanhood, and ignores the fact of noble manhood. The woman who deliberately crowds the limit of decency with regard to dress advertises her own moral cheapness and slanders her sex. Would she so studiously expose her person to the gaze of men? It is no excuse that she is following the dictates of fashion. The future mothers of the race should guard their God-given heritage of womanly virtue with a sanctity above suspicion. Give us chaste women and we will have more civil men.'

The Rev. Dean E. E. Reilly, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic church, said: 'I heartily approve of the stand taken by Archbishop Messmer and I approve his letter. The present modes of dress of our women and children, particularly children, infringes on the line of modesty. The letter is timely. I believe thinking people will heed His Grace's advice.'

OBITUARY.

Thomas F. Condon. Thomas F. Condon was born in Edgerton June 22, 1872, and died at his home in Porter Friday evening, May 26, 1916. He was 43 years of age. He went on operation at Mercy hospital, which was not thought to be serious and for a short time he seemed to improve, but the Heavenly Father, who does all things well, did not see fit to leave him with his loved one, as he gradually grew weaker and all that he suffered patiently, but always with the hope that he might be well again and left with those who loved him. Until a few moments before the end came, he said: "It is hard to leave but God's will be done." He was a faithful member of the T. A. B. society since boyhood and was a man of good principles, a kind husband and a loving father, and will be greatly missed not only in his own home, but by his neighbors and friends, as he was ever thoughtful of others, always ready to do an act of kindness and was a friend of everyone. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife and four children: Francis, Robert, Goldie and Harold; also a mother and four brothers and two sisters, all of whom are in Janesville. The pallbearers were: J. B. Farrington, Ed. Kox, D. Connors, James Barrett, Bert Heffernan and William Connors. The remains were tenderly laid at rest in the Mt. Olivet cemetery at Janesville.

Abner F. Rice. Funeral services over the remains of the late Abner F. Rice were held yesterday afternoon at the chapel of Oak Hill cemetery. The Rev. F. H. Brigham and the Rev. Andrew Porter officiated. Mr. J. Nichols sang, accompanied by Mrs. J. Nichols. The funeral rituals of the Masonic order were conducted, led by A. Matheson as chaplain. There were many beautiful floral offerings. The pallbearers were: Fred Pullman, Harry Garbutt, S. Hutchinson, Fred Burton, H. A. Griffey and H. Moeser. Those from out of town who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Rice and Mrs. M. Green, Chicago; Frank Coad and Mrs. Bradshaw of Greenville, Ill., and Mrs. McPhillips of Greenville, Ill. The remains will be taken to Milwaukee for cremation.

Mrs. Caroline Yahn. Mrs. Caroline Yahn, the widow of the late Michael Yahn of this city, passed away yesterday afternoon at Mercy hospital after an illness of several months' duration. Mrs. Yahn was fifty-one years of age and was born at Jefferson, Wis., Oct. 14, 1865. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Cole of Jefferson. The remains were taken to the old home in this town for interment, the funeral services to be held on Saturday afternoon.

Fred Pullman. Last rites over the remains of the late Fred Pullman were held yesterday afternoon at the chapel of Oak Hill cemetery. The Rev. Charles E. Ewing officiated. Mrs. Yahn was fifty-one years of age and was born at Jefferson, Wis., Oct. 14, 1865. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Cole of Jefferson. The remains were taken to the old home in this town for interment, the funeral services to be held on Saturday afternoon.

Wednesday evening, Mrs. James and George Bennett entertained four teen young ladies of a sewing club, in honor of the Misses Grace Connell and Elizabeth Devins, who are to be married this month. BIG BELOIT PAGEANT TO DEPICT HISTORY

Historic and Pioneer History Will Be Dramatically Depicted in Spectacle June 2 and 3.

Prehistoric and pioneer history of Beloit will be depicted in the pageant which will be presented on Friday and Saturday, June 2 and 3, in a natural amphitheatre on the Adams property, just outside the northern limits of the city on the east side of the river. There will be two performances given each day, at two o'clock in the afternoon and at seven-thirty in the evening.

More than 2,000 persons will be seen in the tremendous spectacle, which will be a dramatic, swiftly moving and thrilling picture of the pioneer days of the Rock River Valley. Scores of famous characters, including Abraham Lincoln, Jeff Davis, Black Hawk and Ho-none-gah will be seen and their exact utterances in the stirring times of long ago will be reproduced. The pageant will so thoroughly reflect the history of this section of the middle west, and will be so beautiful in its presentation that it will leave a deep impression upon all who see it. It will be highly educational. The costuming has been worked out carefully and elaborately—Indian life will be depicted faithfully. The dances will be charming. Beloit is expecting thousands of visitors and the event will be the most notable in the history of that city.

Among the acts will be the "Coming of the Mound Builders," "The Days of Black Hawk and Ho-none-gah," "The Arrival of Caleb Blodgett, Beloit's First Pioneer," and the "Founding of the College."

FRENCH PEOPLE CONFIDENT OF THE NATION'S FINANCES

Paris, June 1.—The records of the National Defense bonds at the Ministry of finances show that the public is now buying to the treasury an average of 50 million francs cash a day in exchange for the short term obligations at 5 per cent. This is more than a billion and a half a month, or 15 billion a year, which is three billion more than the war of 1870 cost. "That fact," says a high authority on French finance, "shows conclusively that the cautious French public is not alarmed by the financial requirements of the French effort."

"There was a period during the war when people, astounded by the proportions of the conflict had taken, were inclined to say 'It can't go on like that. Where will the money come from?' Yet it has gone on with steadily increasing expenditures—billions follow billions into the gulf of war, yet the money flows in. The truth is, that after being shocked by the financial effort required, Frenchmen were astonished at the revelation of their own resources."

The deduction drawn by French financial experts generally is not only that French confidence is undiminished by the multiplication of the government's debts but that it is not money, but credit which kept the war going primarily. On the other hand, they point out, it is war that keeps money in continual circulation, handing it out to new creditors as fast as it is brought in by old ones in exchange for bonds. In this way the French public debt has gone from about 32 billion francs before the war to about 52 billion, an increase of nearly 60 per cent, but nothing in proportion to the increase in the public debt in Germany which is 515 per cent and in Great Britain where it is 165 per cent.

AT THE APOLLO.

Elsie Janis on Friday.

It has remained for Elsie Janis in "Betty in Search of a Thrill" with her wonderful powers of mimicry to get the fullest comedy possibilities out of a society girl dressing up in boy's clothes.

In part of this sparkling photoplay Elsie Janis passes as a young man so successfully that a fantastic housemaid falls in love with her "boyish charm;" detectives mistake her for a fugitive criminal; and the "capper" of a gambling house designs to entice her with other skulking city youths into the snares of his confederates.

It is screeningly funny when Betty slips into the room of one of the young boarders during his absence to borrow his clothes. She is almost caught red handed, and makes haste to hurry through her business, but she hurries so well that after getting out she finds she has forgotten the shoes, and she has to return and run the risk all over again. Leave it to Elsie Janis to make it uproariously funny. She will be seen again at the Apollo Friday.

AT THE APOLLO.

"Human Driftwood" Tonight.

The story of "Human Driftwood," at the Apollo tonight is that of a young bachelor in New York who becomes infatuated with a girl of the dance halls, who seeks his acquaintance through a band of crooks in his apartment and, for his sake, as two of the gang were operating on a safe Hendricks came in. Myra was startled, and as Hendricks and her lover of the underworld came to a fight, Myra was a revolved and shooting to kill Hendricks, killed her own lover.

Years later Hendricks was sent for by Father Harrigan in Alaska to assist him in clearing up the vile conditions existing there. Myra now had a new hall there, and was breaking in her niece, Velma, to the life of a dancer, when Hendricks arrived. He did not recognize Myra, although she recognized him. When Velma told of love with Hendricks, and the town bully had "struck it rich" in the gold fields, Myra sold elms for gold, a fight ensued between Hendricks and the bully in which the bully met with a frightful death, bringing Velma and Hendricks together, and paving the way for true love to take its course.

AT BEVERLY THEATRE.

Marguerite Courtot in "Feathertop," thousands of picture fans and one of the few really beautiful women starring in the silent drama, will appear at the Beverly theatre tonight in the Mutual Masterpiece, De Luxe Edition, "Feathertop," a five act romantic drama based up on the Hawthorne classic of the same title.

As Elsie Green Miss Courtot is first seen amid humble surroundings, as beautiful and unsuited as the flowers which it is her delight to tend. When she visits her wealthy uncle the insidious influences of smart society begin to work upon the girl. As his guest Elsie sees life at its gayest. Her head is turned by the glitter and glare of social diversions. She is pursued by a society idler who makes her believe that he loves her for herself alone. The comes the time when she is disillusioned. Her uncle dies, his fortune is left to his son captain brother, and Elsie is penniless.

AT BEVERLY THEATRE.

Plenty of Excitement in "The Missing Links."

How life seethes and boils at times even in a peaceful little town is thrillingly recounted in "The Missing Links," the Fine Arts-Triangle play.

It will be shown at the Beverly Theatre on Friday. As a background for stirring events are shown views of the quiet Main street, typical of a rural community and interiors of a church during a service and of the homes of the tranquil inhabitants.

But love and finance inject action into the serene atmosphere. A regular feud is started against the banker and his two sons by the justice of peace, because one of the banker's sons, Robert Harmon, elopes with the justice's stepdaughter, Norma Talmadge. The justice seizes an opportunity to wreak his ill-will against the banker. A rumor is started that the banker is insolvent and the depositors withdraw their money till finally the doors have to be closed.

The justice is appointed receiver and leads an angry crowd to the banker's house. He is finally admitted to the house and is shown the body of the banker, who has died from the shock of disappointment. His charges of dishonesty madden Harmon and he threatens to kill the justice. Things come to a climax of intensity with the death of the justice, and Harmon is arrested on a charge of murder.

Through an amateur detective, the bank cashier is proved to be responsible for the murder of the justice by an incriminating cuff-link found near the body. Harmon is released and cleared of the accusation just as a mob breaks into the jail bent on lynching him.

AY MYERS THEATRE.

The youngest leading woman of the present season is the triumph of Miss Florence Shirley, who plays "The Flapper" in the new comedy, "His Majesty Bunker Bean," which comes here to Myers theatre for one performance only on Friday, June 3, directly after a six months' brilliant engagement at the Cort theatre, Chicago. The largest part of Miss Shirley's career has been in stock companies. She began at the Castle Square theatre, Boston. From the very first it has been her good fortune to rise rapidly, for although she began in a very small role in a few weeks she was advanced to ingenue in the company. She has played roles from Shakespeare to musical comedy and in each case has received flattering press notices. As Alice Faulkner she was a great success in "Sherlock Holmes," while later as Marjorie Daw in "The Gingerbread Man" Miss Shirley was one of the delights of the performance. To name over a list of the roles she has played would be impossible. Four years ago she was leading lady with Blanche King in "The Wall Street Girl." Miss Shirley's love for quiet and home was instrumental in having her prefer stock work. Her present role of "The Flapper" in Lee Wilson Dodd's dramatization of Harry Loop Wilson's "Bunker Bean" stories is her greatest success.

Pathetic Request.

Mabel was unfortunate at her dancing class. She is really a popular girl, but it so happened the whole afternoon that when little boys and girls danced together she was left out. At last she could stand it no longer. "Please, Miss Katherine," she said, "if there is any little boy left over next time may I have him?"

Perfection Not Wanted.

A New York judge who refused a man a divorce sought because "his wife was imperfect in everything," said to the fellow: "If you are a perfect human being, or think you are, watch your step. A perfect human being," continued the justice, still bruising the head of the nail, "would be an intolerable nuisance."

CHAPTER XXII.

Bibbs was the only Sheridan to sleep soundly through the night and to wake at dawn with a light heart. His cheerfulness was vaguely diminished by the troublous state of affairs in his family. Bibbs was a sympathetic person, easily touched, but he was indeed living in a dream, and all things outside of it were veiled and remote—for that is the way of youth in a dream. And Bibbs, who had never before been of any age, either old or young, had come to his youth at last.

He went whistling from the house before even his father had come upstairs. There was a fog outdoors, saturated with a fine powder of soot, and though Bibbs noticed absentmindedly the dim shape of an automobile at the curb before Roscoe's house, he did not recognize it as Doctor Gurney's but went cheerily on his way through the dirty mist. And when he was once more installed beside his faithful zinc enter he whistled and sang to it, as other workmen did to their own machines sometimes, when things went well. His comrades in the shop glanced at him amusedly now and then. They liked him, and he ate his lunch at noon with a group of socialists who approved of his ideas and talked of electing him to their association.

The short days of the year had come, and it was dark before the whistles blew. When the signal came, Bibbs went to his office, where he divested himself of his overalls—his single divergence from the routine of his fellow workmen—and after that he used soap and water copiously. This was his transformation scene: he passed into the office a rather frail young working man noticeably begrimed, and passed out of it to the pavement a cheerfully preoccupied sample of gentility, fastidious to the point of elegance.

The sidewalk was crowded with the bearers of dinner pails, men and boys and women and girls from the work rooms that closed at five. Many hurried and some loitered; they went both east and west, jostling one another and Bibbs, turning his face homeward, was forced to go slowly.

Coming toward him, as slowly, through the crowd, a tall girl caught sight of his long, thin figure and stood still until he had almost passed her, for in the thick crowd and the thicker gloom he did not recognize her, though his shoulder actually touched hers. He would have gone by, but she laughed delightedly, and he stopped short, startled. Two boys, one chasing the other, swept between them, and Bibbs stood still, peering about him in deep perplexity. She leaned toward him.

"I knew you," she said.
"Good heavens!" cried Bibbs. "I thought it was your voice coming out of a star!"
"There's only smoke overhead," said Mary, and laughed again. "There aren't any stars."
"Oh, yes, there were—when you laughed!"
She took his arm, and they went on. "I've come to walk home with you, Bibbs. I wanted to."
"But were you here in the—"
"In the dark? Yes! Waiting? Yes!" Bibbs was radiant; he felt suffocated with happiness. He began to scold her.

"I've Come to Walk Home With You, Bibbs."

have colors like an orchard in mid-April. I'm going to take you there some Sunday afternoon, Bibbs."
"You're showing me the town," he said. "I didn't know what was in it at all."
"There are workers in beauty here," she told him, gently. "There are other painters more prosperous than my friend. There are all sorts of things." "I didn't know."

"No. Since the town began growing so great that it called itself 'greater,' one could live here all one's life and know only the side of it that shows."
"The beauty workers seem buried very deep," said Bibbs. "And I imagine that your friend who makes the smoke beautiful must be buried deepest of all. My father loves the smoke, but I can't imagine his buying one of your friend's pictures. He'd buy the 'Bay of Naples,' but he wouldn't get one of those. He'd think smoke in a picture was horrible—unless he could use it for an advertisement!"

"Yes," she said, thoughtfully. "And really he's the town. They are buried pretty deep, it seems, sometimes, Bibbs."
"And yet it's all wonderful," he said. "It's wonderful to me."
"You mean the town is wonderful to you?"
"Yes, because everything is, since you called me your friend. The city is only a rumble on the horizon for me. It can't come any closer than the horizon so long as you let me see you standing by my old zinc enter all day long, helping me, Mary—" He stopped with a gasp. "That's the first time I've called you 'Mary!'"
"Yes," she laughed, a little tremulously. "Though I wanted you to." "I said it without thinking. It must be because you came there to walk home with me. That must be it."

Mary informed him, her tremulous laughter continuing. "Were you glad I came for you?"
"No—not glad. I felt as if I were being carried straight up and up and up—over the clouds. I feel like that still. I think I'm that way most of the time. I wonder what I was like before I knew you. The person I was then seems to have been somebody else, not Bibbs Sheridan at all. It seems long, long ago. I was gloomy and sickly—somebody else—somebody I don't understand now, a coward afraid of shadows—afraid of things that didn't exist—afraid of my old zinc enter! And now I'm only afraid of what might change anything."

"She was silent a moment, and then, 'You're happy, Bibbs?' she asked.
"Ah, don't you see?" he cried. "I want it to last for a thousand, thousand years, just as it is! You've made me so rich, I'm a miser. I wouldn't have one thing different—nothing, nothing!"
"Dear Bibbs," she said, and laughed happily.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Bibbs continued to live in the shelter of his dream. These were turbulent days in the new house, but Bibbs had no part whatever in the turbulence—he seemed an absent-minded stranger, present by accident and not wholly aware that he was present. He would sit, faintly smiling over pleasant imaginings and dark reminiscences of his own, while battle raged between Edith and her father, or while Sheridan unloaded jeremiads upon the sullen Roscoe, who drank heavily to endure them. He was sorry for his father and for Roscoe, and for Edith and for Sibyl, but their sufferings and outerlies seemed far away.

Sibyl was under Gurney's care. Roscoe had sent for him on Sunday night, not long after Bibbs returned the abandoned wraps; and during the first days of Sibyl's illness the doctor found it necessary to be with her frequently, and to install a muscular nurse. And whether he would or no, Gurney received from his hysterical patient a variety of pungent information which would have staggered anybody but a family physician. Among other things he was given to comprehend the change in Bibbs, and why the zinc enter was not putting a lamp in its operator's gizzard as of yore.

Sibyl was not delicious—she was a thin little ego writhing and shrieking in pain. Life had hurt her, and had driven her into hurting herself; her condition was only the adult's terrible exaggeration of that of a child after a bad bruise—there must be screaming and telling mother all about the hurt and how it happened. Sibyl babbled herself hoarse when Gurney withheld morphine. She went from the beginning to the end in a breath. No protest stopped her; nothing stopped her. "You ought to let me die!" she wailed. "What harm have I ever done to anybody that you want to keep me alive? Just look at my life! I only married Roscoe to get away from home, and look what it got me into! I wanted to have a good time—and how could I? Where's any good time among these Sheridans? They never even had wine on the table! I thought I was marrying into a rich family, where I'd meet attractive people I'd read about, and travel, and go to dances—and, oh, my Lord! all I got was these Sheridans! I did the best I could; I just tried to live. Things were just beginning to look brighter, and then I saw how Edith was getting him away from me. And what could I do? What can any woman do?"

Argument Hard to Answer.
Many a native of the Hawaiian Islands has a precarious knowledge of English, picked up from every source imaginable, and of which he is inclined to be proud. He acts it with and without provocation, and occasionally with startling effect, as the wife of the visiting missionary discovered. She said to the man-of-all-work: "I suppose you have no cows in these islands." "No cow? How—get milk no got cow?"

Y. M. C. A. PRESIDENT ADDRESSES MEETING

PRESIDENT F. S. BAINES REVIEWS FISCAL YEAR OF ASSOCIATION AT ANNUAL MEETING MONDAY.

NEED IMPROVEMENTS

Conditions in Some Departments Are in Need of Immediate Improvement.

President F. S. Baines of the Young Men's Christian Association, in his opening address at the annual meeting Monday evening, told of the progress of the organization in the past year and outlined the plans which will be carried out in the future. His talk was very interesting and contained some very valuable information as to the needs of the association. Following is his address to the members of the Y. M. C. A. and friends:

One year ago when the annual meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was called, four new members of the Board of Directors were elected, and later Mr. Lewis withdrew, which left us with an experienced which in a way has made it more difficult for us to work out many of the problems with which we are confronted. As a result of this, we have done some things we ought not to have done and have left undone some things that should have been done. As busy men whose time is generally occupied with their own business cares, we have done our best to serve you and are willing to leave our records spread upon the book of the association for the inspection of anyone who cares to see them.

It is our judgment that the building needs some changes. The bowling alleys are several feet short of regulation length which excludes us from the bowling league under the sanction of the American Bowling association, and from recognition of any scores made by our bowlers. This means a loss of both prestige and money, and should be remedied at once. Some provision for the comfort of spectators should also be included in these alterations.

We find the bottom of the swimming pool is two feet below the city sewer which makes the changing of the water every week tedious and expensive.

Those who have known of the conditions under which our caterers have had to work when serving such dinners as the Twilight club each month will readily see the need of a larger and better ventilated kitchen, situated not in the center of the building as is the present one, but where it can open upon the alley, thus doing away with the necessity of carrying all provisions, garbage, etc., through the main lobby. No doubt this room was adequate for the purpose at the time it was built, but is not now. It would be a source of economy to remedy all these departments.

There was no room for the boys where they could congregate for their Bible classes, play their games, and take their other exercises separate from the men. This seemed to us quite necessary when we took in the larger membership last fall. We provided them with such a room on the second floor, with an office for the boys' secretary included. The cost of this improvement was about $500.00, but we consider it money well spent.

One matter of grave concern to this Association, as it seems to be with others, is the petty thieving in the locker rooms. I understand this has been going on here for years, but of late boys around the building have become so bold we were obliged to resort to some drastic measures which resulted in the arrest of two boys who stole the watches from the Smiths. We were grieved that the affair should cause so much publicity, but being cautioned by the Secretary not to do anything to have little or no news on those boys. They were not members of the "Y," but would come into the building with friends who were. We hope the lesson will be a lesson to those boys and a warning to others who were not punished. As our object is to teach the boys the value of such things and improve their morals, we must not persecute them. It is a matter of consequence that we are organizing last summer of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. They now have a large membership

In justice to the item of cost of operation, it should be stated that the sum of $715 was expended for permanent equipment and supplies, which, together with the item of interest would overcome the apparent deficit. Respectfully submitted, GEO. A. JACOBS, Treasurer.

hope and trust that when the new Board of Directors, some of whom you elect here tonight, have organized you will help in every way you can to lighten this burden which has become too much of a load for them to carry.

Our Y. M. C. A. ranks among the best in the state today and, no doubt, is one of the city's greatest assets, for here the boy gets the best of moral, physical and spiritual training and the boy of today is the man of tomorrow and without good, strong men morally and physically, any city is doomed to the future.

We have many families here of considerable means who could contribute and we do hope that it is approaching later they will respond generously. For our secretaries, Mr. Bearmore and Mr. Center, and those associated with them in the management of the "Y," we have only words of the highest praise and for the work they have done for us. They are men of pure Christian character, always ready to serve and work for the fellow being with whom they come in contact, being rich or poor and of whatever denomination, he has found a hearty welcome here and we are grateful to them for this service.

The General Secretary is now receiving $1500.00 per year salary, and the Boys' Secretary $1000.00. This is not enough for men of their integrity and ability. We think higher salaries should be granted them the coming year.

I do not dwell on the routine work as it has been carried on the past year. Each department is organized and you will hear from the heads of these departments with their reports, also from our General Secretary who will speak of the work of the Association as it is and with recommendations for the future, and will present to you the budget as he has prepared it estimating our requirements for another year.

It has been an honor and a pleasure to us to serve you and I want to state to us to serve you and I want to state to the Board of Directors who have given more freely and willingly of their time as has this Board. It takes a vast amount of time and thought to manage an institution of this kind and I know that every effort has been put forth to better the "Y" and make it a home for the boys and young men where they could mingle freely together and enjoy themselves under the best of moral and physical training.

PETEY DINK—THE DOG SAW HIS FRIEND DOWN THE STREET.

SPORTS

CLEVELAND IN TIE FOR FIRST POSITION

Cubs Break Even With Cardinals While Sox Lose Slugging Bee With Detroit Tigers.

Wednesday the Chicago Cubs broke even with the St. Louis Cardinals, losing the first game to 1 and winning the second match 8 to 3. Wild heating by Zimmerman and Mulligan lost the first scrap for the Cubs, as these two Cub infielders gave the Cards four runs, enough to take the game.

Lavender started the game, but when the wild throws upset him, Packard was rushed to the mound to stop the Cardinals. The Braves were only able to score one run in the first. Second game Mulligan started around second base. McCarthy and Mulligan pulled four double plays, and between them accepted twenty-two out of twenty-four chances in the two games. Seaton and Packard pitched the winning game with Ames and Meadows working for St. Louis.

The White Sox in their game with Detroit got fourteen good, clean hits and the Tigers but nine blows, yet the Sox lost, 7 to 4, because the Tigers played big league baseball and the Sox bush league variety. Danforth, who was the Chicago club and this recruit, showed the Tigers some fancy hurling, until they bunched their hits and counted the needed tallies. Wolfgang finished the game, but was hit freely by the Sox, but he lightened effectively in the pinches.

Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh 5 to 2, in the sixteenth inning, when a hit, a base on balls and three errors scored three runs. Foney and Miller pitched the long game.

Cleveland went into a tie for first place with Washington in the American when Cleveland defeated St. Louis, 10 to 5.

Heavy clotting by the Red Sox and excellent pitching by Gregg beat Washington, 10 to 1, at Boston yesterday.

DUBUQUE COLLEGE WINS HAWKEYE CONFERENCE GAME.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) Dubuque, Ia., May 30.—Before a crowd of nearly 1500 fans, Coach Cretzmeyer's Dubuque College nine walloped the State Teachers, its only undefeated rival, 15 to 3. Dubuque had practically clinched its claim before the contest, and thus served only to further illustrate that the Purple and Gold nine was by all odds the best in the conference.

Giles Joyce was a mystery to the Normandites, and he was not in danger. His mates backed him perfectly, and the Cedar Rapids southpaw contributed a few brilliant fielding punts to the disgracing of the Cedar Falls team. McDillney was easy for the locals, who garnered six runs in the first six innings and spent the seventh chasing themselves breathless around the bases. Kelly, McGaheran and Meyer led Dubuque's attack, the latter cleaning the bases on a long clout. Joe Ryan, of Janesville, played a stellar game at third for Dubuque.

WILLOWDALE TEAM WINS FROM ROCK HILL GIANTS

The Rock Giants were defeated by the Willowdales recently, the score being 9 to 7. The Giants lost the game by the errors in the second inning. MORRIS MILLER

More than one New York State league club is seeking a good shortstop. Syracuse was forced to shift Evans from third base to short. Utica sent Cranston from second to short. Troy also tried to switch Cook from second to short where he was found wanting, and Elmira has been experimenting with youngsters at this position.

It is dawdling upon St. Louis fans that Jack Miller's days as a first baseman are about over and one of the duties of the Cardinals' scouts this season will be to pick up a likely carrier as Miller's successor. Miller is not hitting and his fielding is far from the class required in a major league.

Barney Oldfield is the marvel of the racing world. Back in the era that is but a memory to most of us, the American daredevil first began risking his life piloting racing cars. And he's still doing it. Most of those who have seen him in the game when he was young, some of whom were in the class required in a major league.

But Barney remains. Time and again he has "retired"—only to return and drive more furious races than before. Barney stood in the game when racing cars that averaged sixty to seventy miles an hour were "speed monsters." He scored triumphs in those days and he scored them again when the cars were faster.

"The game is dangerous—and there have been times when I have been in the gain in gold and glory wasn't worth the risk," said Barney some time ago. "But always it has lured me back. The speed madness grows on one like a drug and the faster you go the faster you want to go next time. Those who have lived for years at the wheel of a racing car find it hard to live anywhere else."

It is unnecessary to say that Ed Walsh was in his day one of the greatest pitchers the game ever produced. He was a real iron man, and year after year he kept his team in the race by working out of turn, finishing games which other teammates placed in jeopardy and making himself as useful as possible in the best interests of the team. But eventually the strain told on his pitching arm. He failed and then could not come back. He has been constantly on the payroll of the club, however, and will continue as one of its members for years to come, though he is a questionable asset, simply because he delivered for his employers in the days of old.

A Pittsburgh writer wants to know where the Browns would finish if they lost George Sisler. Inasmuch as the Browns are in last place now, they undoubtedly would remain in that position if they should lose Sisler. It would be more interesting to inquire where the Pirates would finish if they should obtain Sisler, and the answer, the chances are, would be that the Pirates would immediately become factors in the National League race. For Sisler is the sort of a player who has the greatest help to the team, because he is fast as a bullet, has gameness and can hit like a field and run bases, too. This is just the sort of a player Jim Callahan needs, and he years for a player of the Sisler type, even if he would have to play him in the outfield.

Ray Morgan is proving himself one of the best lead-off men in the league. He seldom has failed to get on the bases one or more times in every game that he has played in this season and, needless to say, this is of great value to the team's offensive strength. It is, of course, necessary to get men on the bases before there can be scoring, and Morgan has filled the bill to perfection. He was the wisest move that Griffith made in the spring when he switched Morgan to Moeller's former place, for Morgan has made good there as well as in the field.

INDIANAPOLIS TRAINING CAMP WILL OPEN JULY FIFTH

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Indianapolis, June 1.—The citizens' military training camps, which will open at Fort Benjamin Harrison, near here, July 5 and continue through to Oct. 5, will have the use of four armored military automobiles, according to the plan here by Gen. Kew Wallace, Jr., adjutant of the local committee arranging for the camps. The machines will be sent here by the Northwestern Military and Naval academy of Lake Geneva, Wis., and will be in charge of students from the school.

The committee also announces that more than 2,000 applications for entrance to the camps have been received already, which insures a good attendance at all three camps, and many more are expected before the first camp is opened. The camps will be for a month each. The first will be from July 5 to Aug. 4, the second Aug. 4 to Sept. 3, and the third from Sept. 3 to Oct. 5.

A United States army corps and ambulance also will be provided for the camp and the executives in charge have secured the promise of many of the largest business organizations in the city throughout the territory of the central department to permit a certain number of their employees to attend the camps without loss of salary.

UNJUST APPLICATIONS FOR COMPENSATION ARE SCORED BY COMMISSION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) Madison, Wis., June 1.—The filing of applications for compensation under the workmen's compensation act when there is no justification was scored by the industrial commission today in the case of L. C. Comper against the Simmons Manufacturing company of Kenosha.

"Note should be taken that the application in this matter was made the day following the accident," says the decision. "We observe no reason for such action. At that time no compensation was due and the respondent was not in any default. Filing the application put upon the respondent the necessity of answering at a time when it was not in default, and increased the burden of the commission in handling compensation matters."

The commission then shows the great trouble it went to in this case, traveling to Kenosha to conduct a hearing and the applicant not answering and says that people handling compensation matters should avoid just such experiences as the commission has had to undergo.

Scientific Explanation.

Prof. E. E. Barnard called attention to the discovery of many dark objects on the photographs taken with the Bruce telescope of the Yerkes observatory, often in regions of the sky where there is no ordinary nebulosity and where the stars are too few to form a luminous background for their relief. The appearance of these objects in black relief on the plates can perhaps be explained on the assumption that space itself possesses a feeble luminosity sufficient to affect the sensitive photographic plate with very long exposures.

Dinner Stories

"Sis won't be able to see you tonight, Mr. Smith," said her little brother. "She's had a terrible accident."

"Is that so? What happened?"

"All her hair got burned up."

"Good heavens! Was she burned?"

"No, she wasn't there. She don't know about it yet."

The seedy-looking individual in a saloon turned from the free lunch counter, where he had been helping himself most generously, and said to the barkeeper: "Friend, can you trust me for a glass of beer till tomorrow?"

"I am sorry to hear that," said the seedy one. "It seems kinder mean to eat the amount of free lunch I have and then not buy nothin'."

Over in the college city of Berkeley one morning Perkins looked over his fence and said to his neighbor:
"What are you buying there?"

"I'm just replanting some of my seeds, that's all."

"Seeds!" exclaimed Perkins, angrily. "It looks more like one of my pens."

"That's all right," came from the man on the other side of the fence.
"The seeds are inside."—Argonaut.

Little Willie came to his mother
with the following query:
"Mother, what would you do if some one broke the large vase in the parlor?"

"I would whip him," responded his mother.

After a few seconds elapsed Willie,
with a broad grin, said:
"Well, you better get ready. Papa broke it!"

To Relieve Fatigue.
When a woman is very tired she will find one of the best processes of refreshing herself is to wring out hot clothes and lay them over her eyes and forehead. A hot water bag does not act as a substitute for this, and the treatment is a little trouble. The simplest way is to have two cloths and a basin of hot water ready to wring out and replace the one that becomes cool on the head.

Spring time is moving time. If you have a house to rent, let be known through a Gazette want ad.

COMMON AMERICAN BIRDS

INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT THEM
SUPPLIED BY THE BUREAU OF BIOLOGICAL SURVEY OF THE UNITED STATES DEPART-MENT OF AGRICULTURE

BROWN THRASHER
(Troglodytes aedon)

Length, about eleven inches. Brownish red above, heavily streaked with black below.

Range: Breeds from the Gulf states to southern Canada and west to Colorado, Wyoming and Montana; winters in the southern half of the eastern United States.

Habits and economic status: The brown thrasher is more retiring than either the mocking bird or catbird, but like them is a splendid singer.
Not infrequently, indeed, its song is taken for that of its more famed coun-sins, the mocking bird.

It is partial to thickets and gets much of its food from the ground. Its search for this is usually accompanied by much scratching and scattering of leaves; whence its common name. Its call note is a sharp sound like the smacking of lips, which is useful in identifi-fying this long-tailed, thick-throated bird, which does not much relish close scrutiny.

The brown thrasher is not so fond of fruit as the catbird and mocker, but devours a much larger percentage of animal food. Beetles form one-half of the animal food, grasshoppers and crickets one-fifth, caterpillars, including cutworms, somewhat less than one-fifth, and bugs, spiders, and millipedes comprise most of the remainder. The brown thrasher feeds on such coleopterous pests as wireworms, May beetles, rice weevils, rose beetles, and figeaters. By its destruction of these and other insects, which constitute more than 60 per cent of its food, the thrasher much more than compensates for that portion (about one-tenth) of its diet derived from cultivated crops.

Might Try This.
If a shoe pinches in any particular part, a cloth wrung out in hot water and laid over the place while the shoe is on the foot will expand the leather and give relief.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, June 1, 1876.—At the recent session of the board of equalization held at Madison
Rock county was assessed at $21,676-859. The assessment in 1874 was $21,666-275.

A private letter received from S.
McDowall, agent for the Rotary Watertown, states that the Latta engine after playing all day Tuesday again broke her valves and ended the trial.
Mr. McDowall claims the average, and says he understands that the committee will report in favor of his engine.
Recently several burglaries have been committed in the city and yet no clues of the thieves have been obtained. At one house they entered the cellar, took everything in the shape of eatables and left without being discovered. They tried another house, but the lady thereof became frightened, gave a shriek, and the sinners took to their heels, taking nothing with them.

Something To Cut And Paste

The Foldover Family—No. 11

Look at the Foldover Goose, who waddles about the back yard of the Foldover Family and gets herself into many strange positions. If you will paste the design upon light-weight cardboard, and when dry paint with water-colors and cut out carefully, you will laugh to see how funny it looks. You may find it easier to copy this drawing much larger on another piece of white paper before pasting. Then, with the aid of brass paper-fasteners or pins bent over at the back, you can fasten the parts together at the holes indicated. The Goose can then be bent about into many positions, such as the one shown in the picture. The finished Goose may also be used as

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

CHAPTER 64

The confusion of scientists in the presence of the most commonplace phenomena of life is one of the mockeries of twentieth century civilization. By leaving God out of the simplest processes of reproduction, growth, and decay, our modern materialistic restrictions of their materialistic vision, fail to see the divine scheme that lies so close at hand. True, indeed, is it said of them, "They have ears and hear not, eyes and see not."

We have reviewed the results of hundreds of experiments conducted by scores of investigators, working independently of each other, upon the problems of nutrition.

We have seen the effects of soil minerals upon the life of the plant and the effect of plant minerals on the life of man.

We have seen how all efforts to square the complicated theories of dietitians and food experts with the simplest and most obvious of food facts end in confusion. This confusion which in itself is itself frequently in high places as it is found among the common people, is largely the result of the materialistic spirit of the times.

Men who fondly cherish their intellectual accomplishments as the chief symptoms of progress and the loftiest glories of civilization are only too often prone to ignore the common sense, intellectual pride seems to develop in them a sort of spiritual astigmatism.

Many have abandoned altogether the old-fashioned idea that God is the author of life, and that the manifestations of life are the expressions of fixed laws.

They forget that a hen's egg laid in China is identical in physical and chemical properties with a hen's egg laid in Russia or Texas, or if they admit the fact they promptly explain it away with ponderous phrases.

They forget that the flavor of the elderberry or the peach is the same today as it was when they were boys.

They forget that the seed is always true to type and that from the acorn springs only the oak.

They forget that cow's milk, whether it be produced in the Isle of Guernsey or in Sullivan County, New York state, is always chemically the same.

They forget that the milk of the normal human mother, whether she be Eskimo, Filipino, Armenian, Spaniard, or Pennsylvania Dutch is always chemically the same.

They do not stop to consider that this constancy of adherence to a never changing standard must be the result of an operation of fixed law.

They fail to note that the first food of every human being is colostrum and that for the first three days of every normal infant life the one food required is colostrum.

They fail to see that the second food of the normal babe, which suffices it for at least a year is mother's milk.

They fail to interpret the fact that the appearance of colostrum and milk suffer no anxiety over the occasional appearance of spaghetti in his diet, particularly then it is cooked in the Italian fashion, with onions, tomatoes, oil and Parmesan or Roman cheese, the combination of which to a considerable extent offsets the mineral losses sustained in the refinement of the semolina or farina.

J. R. SWITZER SEVERELY BURNED BY GASOLINE

Clinton, May 31.—Memorial Day was a decidedly sad one for J. R. Switzer and family, for at a quarter past six in the morning Mr. Switzer arose and started to general the gasoline stove in a small summer kitchen off the rear of the house. The kitchen was heating Mr. Switzer noticed the tank was bent and took hold of it with both hands to straighten it up, and the bottom broke entirely off, allowing the gasoline to pour out on to the open blaze. The kitchen and Mr. Switzer were a mass of flames in an instant. Neighbors immediately gave the alarm and the fire company responded promptly, but the fire had gained great headway and a large amount of water was necessary to quench it. The kitchen and sitting rooms, and in fact all down stairs, were badly damaged and almost the entire furniture was damaged by fire smoke and water. Mrs. Switzer was in bed when the fire started and was unable to save a single article of clothing, having to leave the house in her night robe and bare feet. The worst of all was the terribly severe burns sustained by Mr. Switzer. Almost his entire face was badly burned and the skin and flesh peeled off both hands. The physician says it will be many weeks before he will be able to use them to any account. The entire community have the heartiest sympathy for this most excellent family in their affliction.

Yes, we like her, and we miss her, and the old hill's not the same, when we fall to see her smiling face around 'tis a habit—it we expect her, she's a care-free happy chum, and her laughter does for us with cheer resound. She's a jolly good companion, and she never has the blues, she's a busy little girl—she's all alive, just a clever nifty lass, there with hope, and joy and class, she's our sweet heart—we're past forty, she's just five. But we're somehow learned to love her, and we hold her on our knee, and we talk to her about a score of things. She's an interesting girlie and good natured as can be, nothing sweeter than her mirth which daily rings out across the gentle breezes, there 'tis wafted far and wide, where a record made by angels shall survive, yes, we love her and her ways, she adds sunshine to our days, we're past forty—and our sweet heart's only five.

QUESTIONS ABOUT FOOD

Q.—Does toasting bread change its food value?
A.—The toasting of bread does not in any way affect its food value, provided the bread be lightly toasted. There is good reason to believe that over-toasting of bread destroys its vitamins.

Of course, by "bread" as referred to here whole wheat bread is meant, to be destroyed, the vitamins who discourage the use of toast do so for the reason that white bread is almost exclusively used for toasting.

No amount of toasting could make white bread good food, nor can it seriously change for the worse its food value, for the reason that a product which has so little food value to start with can hardly undergo a serious loss of any kind no matter what is done to it.

Q.—Does clabber any food value?
A.—Clabber is almost entirely protein, which consists of the casein of milk minus the fat and contains in addition to the mineral content of milk the lacto-acid which results from the conversion of the milk sugar during the souring process. Clabber and buttermilk are almost identical in food value. Most people could do well to consume them every day.

Q.—Have tea and coffee any food value?
A.—Tea and coffee have no food value whatsoever, except in so far as they contain milk or cream.

Q.—Has malted milk any food value?
A.—Malted milk possesses the food value of dry milk powder plus the food value of malted barley, finely ground and mixed with the milk. Any infant brought up on malted milk should be fed with the carefully strained juice of ripe orange between feedings, a teaspoonful for babies two months old, a half orange for babies from six to eight months old, a whole orange for babies a year and a half old. The orange pulp, of course, should be discarded, and the orange should be ripe.

Q.—Has spaghetti or macaroni any food value?
A.—Spaghetti and macaroni have practically the same food value as white bread. They are made of a milling product known in the trade as semolina or farina. Cream of wheat, which is farina, would make good commercial spaghetti or macaroni.

When made of winter wheat, as is the custom in connection with the cheaper products, they contain less protein than when made with hard spring wheat.

Spaghetti is not the staff of life. Hence where one's breadstuffs are made of the whole grain, one need
